Fox Run earnings up by half over '96

Terry Fox would have been proud of them.

Elk Point's Terry Fox Run supporters ran, walked, cycled or rode through a chilly, damp and windy afternoon to bring in a total of $3401.75 in pledges for cancer research. This year's total is an increase of 53 percent over 1996 figure of $2218.00.

Peggy Maas was once again the #1 Fundraiser, earning a Terry Fox sweatshirt for her impressive efforts. Maria Povaschuk, who raised the second largest amount, and Isabel Myshaniuk, in third place, received Terry Fox t-shirts. The children's draw was won by Quillan Lowry.

A number of other prizes were also awarded, Maria Povaschuk winning a "Clean-Up Award" for allowing her home to be used as a midpoint pitstop for the runners, Cindy Lanfermann winning the "Oldest Shoes" award, Cheri Lindquist for the most colorful outfit, Kevin Schrock the "Multiple Choice" award, Levi Stewart the "People's Choice" award as the runner who had the most fun, Leigha Bishop the "Station #1 and #4 Award" for the coldest person to pass those checkpoints, and Edie Lowry a surprise award as the last person to finish the run.

Mrs. Lowry and her youngsters made this a real family event, with her older children on bicycles and her youngest two riding on a conveyance that looked much like a racing sulky.

Four local industrial businesses, Norcen Energy Limited, Pan Canadian Petroleum Limited, Shamrock Valley Enterprises and E-Can Oilfield Services, donated the prizes. Other support came from Tags Food and Gas, Home Town Grocers, Golden Loaf Bakery, Lakeland Meat Processors, Elk Point Co-Op and Capitol Drugs.

Volunteers play a very important role in the Terry Fox Run each year. This year's contingent consisted of Kris Ann Jenner, Taylor Jenner, Louise Larson, Keith Larson, Michelle Dargis, Jackie Ludlage, Dennis Maas, Brenda H. and Denise Maas.

TERRY FOX RUN PARTICIPANTS ended their 10 km course chilly, weary and damp, but with the knowledge that they had earned over $3400 toward the ongoing fight against cancer.

Tax payment plan approved by Council

Elk Point property owners will have a second option for the payment of their tax bills, come January 1, 1998. Council gave all three readings to a bylaw which allows a taxpayer to divide their 1997 tax bill by 12, next January, and to give the Town 12 post-dated cheques for that amount, one to be paid each month in the new year.

If your 1998 tax bill is higher than in 1997, the extra will be payable when the tax notices come out in approximately June, while if the 1998 tax bill is lower, you will receive a credit toward your 1999 taxes, according to Town Manager Myron Goyan.

Goyan does not expect a huge number of taxpayers to take advantage of the scheme, but added that it is helpful to those who find it difficult to pay a large amount at once.

A total of 95.5 percent of the $1,003,774 in 1997 taxes were paid prior to September 1, when a late payment penalty was put in place. One taxpayer who didn't make it in before the deadline appeared before Council last week to ask for removal of the penalty, but Mayor Ed Buck explained that the penalty is strictly outlined in the Town's bylaws and cannot be changed. At least two or three taxpayers approach the Town each year in this regard. The only way taxes can be accepted on or after September 1 without payment of a penalty is if they were mailed in and were postmarked prior to September 1.

Unightly premises

Another bylaw which received all three readings declares war on untidy and unsightly premises, repealing the former bylaw which allowed the property owner 14 days to clean up after notification. This was reduced to a mere two days, after which the Town will clean up the premises and add it to the property's tax bill. Any appeal to the Town would have to be made during those two days. Mayor Buck said the 14-day period "is a joke" as far as getting the work done. It was noted that the Town has a few places of their own which need a cleanup as well.

No applications

The Town did not receive any applications for the double-barreled job of dog catcher and bylaw enforcement officer. Several alternatives were discussed, and Council later went into camera to discuss the matter further.

Golf course taxes

The Town will apply to the County of St. Paul on behalf of the Golf and Country Club for forgiveness of the municipal portion of taxes on the golf course. This land is owned by the Town, who therefore received the tax notice. The Golf Club is to pay any taxes due on the property.

Objection to application

The Town of Elk Point was already unhappy with Elk Point Gas Ltd., and had written to the Public Utilities Board voicing their concerns regarding profit made by the company. On receiving notice that the utility is seeking an increase in its gas cost recovery rate, they promptly decided to file an objection.

The increase, to take place October 1, is from $0.656 per gigajoule to $0.713 per gigajoule, and is reported in the company's application to be

Area resident dies in fiery crash

A single vehicle accident early Friday morning has claimed the life of 33-year-old Deven McBroom of Elk Point.

At approximately 4:10 a.m. the RCMP received a call from a semi truck driver advising that he had come upon a pickup truck overturned and on fire on Highway #41 approximately 1 km south of Elk Point.

McBroom was alone in the truck, which was owned by Rockwell Servicing Incorporated, at the time of the accident. RCMP are investigating driver fatigue as a contributing factor in the accident.

This was the second crash involving oilfield personnel this past week.

RCMP responded to an injury motor vehicle accident at 7:00 a.m. on September 9, 8 km south of Frog Lake on Highway 897. An oilfield company truck was southbound when the driver lost control and struck the southbound ditch. The driver received non-life-threatening injuries and was taken to the Elk Point Health Centre. The RCMP are continuing to investigate and no charges have been laid.

CONSTRUCTION UNDERWAY -- Construction got underway last week on the new credit union to be located at the corner of 50 Avenue and 50 Street. Here, holes were being drilled for the installation of concrete pilings. The lot is the onetime location of Zarowny Motors and has been vacant for some years.

Town objecting to Gas Company application

based on an increase in the average gas purchase price, which could go up as much as 35.7 percent over current figures.

Mayor Buck also felt the timing for objections to the application was "so short it is difficult to respond." The Town received notice of the application on August 22 and has until September 17 to respond. Buck noted that the public is also able to object, provided they do so by the deadline.

Inter-hospital emergency transfers now AH-funded

Lakeland Regional Health Authority announced last week the implementation of a program that will pay for ground ambulance inter-hospital transfers for patients who require emergency health care.

The program is being funded by Alberta Health and is retroactive to April 1, 1997. The program does not cover non-emergency cases or ambulance service to the first health facility that can provide emergency care. In these cases, Lakeland residents and/or their insurance companies will continue to be responsible for covering the cost of ambulance service.

Lakeland Chief Executive Officer Bill Bell explained that to be eligible, a person has to be in an emergency situation and unable to get the care they need in the nearest health centre that has an emergency department. People who already have ground ambulance inter-hospital transfer coverage through private insurance, a government assistance program or other plan (e.g. Workers' Compensation) are not eligible for reimbursement under this new program.

Bell said arranging reimbursements will take some time but patients and others who qualify will be paid as soon as possible.

Anyone who thinks they are eligible should call 1-800-815-8683 or write to the Regional Health Authority's office in Smoky Lake.

Information Night is tonight!

By Deanna Easthope
FCSS Director

FCSS is hosting Information Night tonight, Tuesday, September 16 between 7:00 and 9:00 a.m. at the Elks Hall. Information Night is an opportunity for people to become aware of what is available for everyone right in our own community, in terms of services, clubs, recreation, education and so forth. The evening can be especially valuable to newcomers in our community because so many of the non-profit groups and agencies are showcased together under one roof at one time. It's like a community "people resources" trade fair. Not only that, it is a nice time to visit with everyone.

Emergency transfers now funded by Alberta Health

Lakeland Regional Health Authority announced last week the implementation of a program that will pay for ground ambulance inter-hospital transfers for patients who require emergency health care.

The program is being funded by Alberta Health and is retroactive to April 1, 1997. The program does not cover non-emergency cases or ambulance service to the first health facility that can provide emergency care. In these cases, Lakeland residents and/or their insurance companies will continue to be responsible for covering the cost of ambulance service.

Lakeland Chief Executive Officer Bill Bell explained that to be eligible, a person has to be in an emergency situation and unable to get the care they need in the nearest health centre that has an emergency department. People who already have ground ambulance inter-hospital transfer coverage through private insurance, a government assistance program or other plan (e.g. Workers' Compensation) are not eligible for reimbursement under this new program.

Bell said arranging reimbursements will take some time but patients and others who qualify will be paid as soon as possible.

Anyone who thinks they are eligible should call 1-800-815-8683 or write to the Regional Health Authority's office in Smoky Lake.

At Information Night, some groups see the event as an opportunity to take registrations for the coming season. So check these groups out if any member of your family would like to become involved. Not only that, many exhibitors also have draws for great prizes.

From a history lesson, we learn that in 1597 Sir Francis Drake stopped a Spanish merchant fleet. Its cargo was strange: seasoned oak barrel staves. Drake reasoned they would be used to carry provisions in an attack on England. He burned them. A year later the Armada sailed. Its food, in green, unseasoned barrels, spoiled. Spain's crews sickened. Drake's foresight, more than the battle itself, sent a mighty empire into decline.

I would like to suggest that one can liken that history lesson to valuing what we already have in our community. What we have in our community has been "seasoned" like the oak barrel staves. Different groups, clubs and organizations have all developed over time because people in our community saw a need.

Now in the case of Sir Francis Drake, who was an English person, he wanted to protect his country, England. So when he saw a Spanish ship and noticed the type of barrels they had, he envisioned they could carry weapons to fight England. One way to put a stop to that was to burn the barrels. This he did. But, the Spanish people rebuilt the barrels. The purpose for the barrels for the Spaniards was to carry food provisions. What happened? The barrels being too new, were too green and unseasoned. There fore, the food spoiled. And as was stated, the crew became sick. Thus the Spaniards lost the battle on

England, and England won. The question becomes: was this luck or intelligence? "Luck may bring us opportunity, intelligence alone shapes it to our purposes." (Royal Bank of Canada Newsletter)

Back to Information Night. What you can learn about our community if you don't attend, you may learn by chance or by luck. But if you do attend, you will gain "intelligence" and valuable information about what does happen in our community. See you there!

Nutrition notes

Building strong bones

By Shelley Miller-Hertes
Registered Dietician, Elk Point Health Centre

Calcium intake is important throughout the life cycle: (1) in bone-building years (up to 35 years) to maximize bone mass; and (2) after 35 years of age, adequate calcium intake minimizes bone loss. If individuals are unable to consume adequate calcium via food, a supplemental source of calcium may be prescribed.

Adequate calcium intake is only one of the many factors that influence bone mass. Other factors include genetics, diet, weight-bearing activity and hormone level. High intakes of alcohol and caffeine, as well as smoking, all decrease calcium absorption and utilization.

Here are some suggestions to help you select a diet that provides adequate calcium for you:

(1) Eat the recommended number of servings of milk and milk products each day — Adults 2-4 servings; children 3 servings; adolescents 3-4 servings; pregnant and breast-feeding women 3-4 servings.

(2) Milk and milk products include milk, chocolate milk, buttermilk, cheese, yogurt, cottage cheese, ice milk and ice cream. Also included are foods made mostly with milk, such as milk-based soups and milk-based puddings.

(3) Milk and milk products do NOT include butter, cream, whipping cream, sour cream or cream cheese. These foods do not provide the calcium and other nutrients found in milk.

(4) Examples of one serving, which provides 300 mg of calcium: 1 cup milk, 3/4 cup yogurt, 1 1/2 oz. cheese, 2 slices processed cheese, 2 cups cottage cheese, 1 1/2 cups ice cream, 1 cup of pudding made with milk.

(5) Other foods that provide 300 mg calcium in the serving size listed are: 3 1/2 oz. canned salmon with bones, 7 med. sardines, 2 cups baked beans, 3 cups kidney beans (cooked), 3 cups chick peas (cooked), 11 oz. tofu, 3/4 cup almonds, 1 1/2 cups sesame seeds, 1 3/4 cups mixed nuts, 1 3/4 cups sunflower seeds, 1 1/4 cups bok choy or kale, 2 1/2 cups broccoli, 6 slices bread.

* Note the quantities needed to reach 300 mg calcium are very large and in some cases very high in calories (eg. mixed nuts: 1 3/4 cups = 700 calories).

Sky Watch

Did you see that? A long, approximately good 5 seconds of easy meteoroid observation took place on our deck at 9:30 last evening, September 10. It was seen in the southeast just under the constellation of the Northern Cross — Cygnus. It wasn't the Mars Global Surveyor scheduled to arrive on planet Mars this week because the meteoroid was streaking toward the east and right now Mars, west of the Northern Cross, is located in the low southwest during evening twilight.

This type of meteoroid is so exciting to the one fortunate enough to see it. It was much closer than most, which are usually observed far out in space. There was the bright fire ball, travelling horizontal to the horizon, with a long tail and visible for a comfortable 5 seconds before it burned up. What my eyes usually catch of a meteoroid are but a flash of a streak. If only the camera had a sensor that would know the magnificent sight was approaching and would signal to its owner to get ready. Maybe someday.

We can be prepared for an Orionid meteoroid shower in the west on October 21. It is estimated that there will be up to 20 meteors per hour seen in rural locations. Meteors are always more visible after midnight... on your deck of course with that hot mug of 'whatever'.

In 1977 the first book ever purchased for our astronomy shelf was The Young Scientists Book of Stars and Planets by Usborne. It has very good information and data regarding meteors, ie. The largest meteor (called so when a meteoroid actually hits the earth or any other planet) crater on earth was formed 50,000 years ago in the Arizona desert near Flagstaff. It consisted of iron and nickel that was some 80 meters wide and dug a hole about 1265 meters (4150 feet) across and 174 meters (570 feet) deep. Its rim towers more than 150 feet above the surrounding ground level.

Here is a simple experiment taken from the Young Scientist Book. Mom or Dad, you'll enjoy it and be sure and have your kids assist you.

1. The surface of your model planet is a bed of flour about 2 cm. thick in the bottom of a tray. 2. Smooth off the flour with the edge of a ruler. It is important that the surface be smooth. Place tray on floor with newspaper spread underneath tray.

3. Stand on chair directly above the tray. Take a small spoonful of flour, hold it about 2 meters above the floor and let the flour drop. Repeat a few times from different heights.

4. The flour will make indentations just like a meteorite hitting the earth or moon. The mini-craters that are formed have the same sort of raised lip and sloping sides as real craters.

5. The largest meteorite crater, as I mentioned before, hit the earth near Flagstaff, Arizona 50,000 years ago. Have fun experimenting.

Back to school for F. G. Miller

By Derri Walker
and Pam Jabush
FGM Student Journalists

Once again, the hallways of F. G. Miller High are crawling with students, well, most of the hallways. Renovations are well underway and are right on schedule. This will make for quite a confusing next couple of months, especially for the new students at F. G. Miller.

Even through all the chaos, Crusaders are still continuing with their athletics. Volleyball try-outs started September 8 and league play will begin in October.

"Due to construction, no volleyball tournaments will be held at F. G. this year," said Adrian Kiss, the Phys Ed instructor at the school, "but we will be travelling to a number of out of town tournaments and fans are always welcome!" The golf team has also been selected and they are looking forward to the tournament that will be held on September 19 in Bonnyville. The Jr. Sr. Cross Country championships are to be held on September 24.

Along with the new school year comes new staff. Ms Kandy Cameron, Mr. Colin Bjorkman and Mr. Mark Beaulieu are all new teachers to F. G. Miller. Ms Cameron is a half-time teacher who works during the morning teaching science and math. Mr. Bjorkman, a former Crusader who graduated from F. G. in 1992, teaches math, science and physics. Mr. Beaulieu teaches biology and math. He graduated from the University of Saskatchewan and has taught at Saddle Lake and at Poundmaker's in St. Paul. As well, Ms Manon Joice, an instructional assistant, who began working at F. G. Miller toward the end of the last school year, has returned to continue her work. We would like to welcome them and hope they enjoy teaching at F. G.

Miller and being fellow Crusaders.

In continuing to promote student success, the Above the Limit and Crusader of the Week programs will continue throughout the year. We would like to congratulate Tanya Yopyk on being the first to hand in an Above the Limit entry as well as Zanna Brovchenko and Laura Oszust on being the first two Crusaders of the Week.

School pictures are scheduled for September 18. That same evening is "Meet the Teachers" night. Parents of new students, as well as returning students, are encouraged to come to the school to talk with their child's teachers. The evening begins at 7:30 p.m. in the gym.

We would like to wish all of the students and teachers a great year and we ask that all of you pray that the renovations are completed on time!

F. G. Miller High School begins Crusading Above the Limit

By Denise Smereka

F. G. Miller High School is starting out right with the second year of the Crusade Above the Limit program. In a nutshell, the program's focus is on academic achievement. Each time a Crusader gets 80%+ on an exam, quiz, essay or individual project he or she can make that mark into an entry in the program. This year, work experience and special projects term marks are also eligible to become entries.

Last year, the Crusaders filled the barrel with 7,903 entries. Throughout the year and at the grand finale, 145 students won prizes that ranged from gift certificates to a color TV (sponsored by Footprints).

Tanya Yopyk really started the year off right by entering the very first mark of the year. She received 92% in math... congratulations, Crusader!! Other Crusaders have also begun the road to success and the stack of entries is growing daily.

It is with pride that we begin the '97-'98 Crusade Above the Limit program and hope that the community will become involved in our effort to focus on achievement. We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the following businesses, clubs and individuals for investing in the program thus far: Mr. Kiss, 1st Class Office Services, St. Paul and District Co-op, E-Can, Premier Ralph Klein, Mr. Krys, Mr. Hellquist, Dr. Ken L. Miller, Subway, Elk Point Insurance, Elks Lodge #460, Flower Fantasy, MLA Paul Langevin,

Town of Elk Point, Elk Point OORP, Elk Point Review, Cardan Electric, ODS Picture Framing, Mrs. Irene Melin, AADAC, County of St. Paul FCSS, Ms Smereka, F. G. Miller Students' Union and Mr. Hawkins.

It is our hope that more of the community will invest in the program and make it as successful as it was last year. We are looking for monthly sponsors as well as sponsors for the larger prizes given away in June of 1998. If you would like to get involved as a sponsor, please contact Ms Smereka at 724-3966 for more information.

Minor Hockey ice fees will increase by $25

By Doug Bassett
Elk Point Minor Hockey

Each year the Elk Point Minor Hockey operating budget is about $50,000. Last Tuesday night about 25 people attended the first Minor Hockey meeting of the season. The biggest question from the well-attended meeting was "How much will the ice fees go up?"

As it turned out, the fees will only go up by $25 in each category. The range will be from $125 to $225. Still not too bad for two hours of practice each week, and a game slot every Saturday as well as tournaments. How can Minor Hockey afford to do this when the cost per child for ice will be $250 plus another $50 for insurance to Alberta Hockey, and then the cost of referees on top of that? Bingos and donations.

Oh yeah, the dreaded bingos. This was another hot topic on the agenda. The bingo dilemma. Each year Minor Hockey has 12 bingos that raise about $20,000. How can 50% of the Minor Hockey parents continue to do 100% of the bingos? How can we solve this ongoing problem? The solution that was voted in unanimously was "that each family would work two bingos for every child, or pay $100 per bingo missed." What this means is that each family will be required to have two $100 cheques per child left with Minor Hockey, once you work your bingo your cheque will be returned. You may work your bingo or get someone to work it for you, or pay your $200. The free ride is over! Five hours at the bingo hall of $100. This procedure seems to work well for other minor hockey towns with the same problem. If you lose your bingo licence because you don't supply enough workers, then what? Then you pay big time, or you don't have a hockey system at all!

Also new this year, to simplify things, Minor Hockey is soliciting the business community for donations for the upcoming season. Letters were delivered this past week. This was tried before a few years ago and seemed to work well. Every business that donates now will not be solicited by any individual team throughout the season. Minor Hockey will advance funds to the teams to host their tournaments in town, and for entry fees to approximately two tournaments out of town. The teams will provide a financial statement to Minor Hockey as to where they spend the funds given to them. Businesses that donate will have their name displayed on a banner in the arena. Suggested donations are from $100 bronze donation to $1000 platinum donation. For the $1000 platinum donation you will have the option of sponsoring one specific team.

O.K., now do you still want to play hockey? Well I guess, of course you do! When is registration? Thursday, September 19 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and on Saturday, September 20 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the A. G. Ross Arena Horizon Room. And knowing how tight money can be at this time of year, post dated cheques for partial payment will be accepted, but must be within a reasonable length of time.

Now for some other hockey news on the agenda. Returning for his fourth season in Elk Point, the Kelly Pratt Skills Clinic on the weekend of October 18 and 19. This is not a fundraiser. The cost is very reasonable. Then, the ref clinic on the following weekend, October 25 and 26. The cost is covered by Elk Point Minor Hockey for refs working in our system, and coaches' clinics, a requirement by Hockey Alberta for anyone wishing to coach a team, are also covered by Elk Point Minor Hockey.

County questions Elk Point's motives for annexation

Rhonda Noyce
Staff Writer

County Council met with Elk Point Council last week regarding the Town's request for annexation, but the County has been left with even more questions.

County Reeve Ray Danyluk says Elk Point has more land already annexed than they have developed land and he does not see the need for more annexation.

Because of the deadlock in agreement between the two councils, each of the administration departments are being

"Our number one concern is the access to the elevator," says Danyluk. "The road south would be in the jurisdiction of the town and they could put a ban on the road."

Danyluk says that over half of the grain that is transported to the elevator is moved by truck. He is concerned that if residents of the town who develop in that area start to complain about the traffic, then the Town council would put a road ban on the highly travelled route.

"And who better to represent these producers than the County," Danyluk questioned.

Mayor Ed Buck stated the council's reasons for annexation of SW 1/4 of 1 are that the, "cost of future development for water and sewer will be much cheaper than continuing north of 57 Ave.; ability to zone the area for residential as well as light industrial on the road parameter to the elevator; concern for controlled development."

Both parties' concerns will be written in a report and submitted to the Municipal Affairs department. The next stage of annexation includes public meetings. The Municipal Government Board can conduct their own investigation on the matter.

EUB says oilfield sand is safe to use on roads

The Alberta Energy Utilities Board (EUB) announced Friday that they will allow the use of produced sand from heavy oil operations in road bed construction for the remainder of the 1997 sand disposal season.

"The produced sand is a non-dangerous oilfield waste," EUB released in a statement.

The EUB agreed to review the practice after receiving a petition in late July, 1997, from 42 residents in the St. Paul and Bonnyville area. The petitioners requested that the practice stop, pending discussions with the involved parties.

Following a public meeting in early August, a number of topics for discussion were identified and are now being addressed.

In mid-July, the EUB reactivated the Oily By-product Task Force to review the concept and determine a new standard of practice.

The task force met in Calgary on September 11 and consists of representatives from industry, non-government organizations, landowners associations, government and the public. The task force will address the issues and concerns which have been raised by area residents.

The sand at issue is formation sand produced with heavy oil in the St. Paul, Bonnyville, Cold Lake region. There are varying, but significant amounts of this produced sand for every barrel of oil produced. Cumulatively, the region produces tens of thousands of cubic metres of this sand annually.

Sand used in road bed construction must meet specified criteria such as no free oil or free water. This produced sand was considered to be "non-dangerous oilfield waste," as defined in "EUB Guide 58, Oilfield Waste Management Requirements for the Upstream Petroleum Industry."

The EUB has cored and analyzed samples from locations in certain roads which were identified as being of concern to residents in the area. The analysis of those cores containing produced sand confirmed the material is a non-dangerous oilfield waste.

Produced sand has been spread on roads in Alberta for road surfacing and dust suppression for several decades. Extensive environmental research has been completed on spreading produced sands on roads over the years, and the most recent standard of practice was developed in 1995 by the EUB's Oily By-product Task Force. In early July, 1997, the EUB recognized that, due to increasing heavy oil production in the region, there will be further approvals sought for the use of produced sand in road bed construction.

Community Advisory Policing Committee reviews concerns

Ghost cars and a traffic monitor hired by the oil companies are slowing down traffic in the oil patch these days. RCMP ghost cars are targeting big trucks, and an RCMP member riding along with the traffic monitor has surprising truckers with $200 tickets in recent weeks. Doug Lee, oil patch representative to Elk Point's Community Advisory Policing Committee, says "traffic has really slowed down, and there's more respect" due to the enforcement measures.

Other concerns involving the oil patch were also discussed when the CAPC met last week. Background checks on new and potential employees by oil companies were suggested, to make sure that these people were qualified for the jobs they were undertaking. Checking of character references were also suggested.

With the oil patch now extending west of town, county representative Gordon Kuhn said that problems with oilfield and pipeline vehicles are being experienced in that area. "You've got to do a lot of defensive driving." Fortunately, the oil companies are willing to listen to complaints and take action against offenders.

In-town concerns voiced at the meeting included the matter of school and playground zones which had been brought to the attention of Town Council earlier in the year. The Town agreed there was a concern, but felt it would be too costly to post signs advising of these areas. They are considering such alternatives as imposing a 30 kph speed limit in all areas of town.

The perennial problem of turns will be brought to the attention of the RCMP, and statistics are being gathered regarding traffic levels on the corner of 50th Ave and Highway 41 preparatory to approaching Alberta Transportation regarding a traffic light for that intersection.

The CAPC will be having a table at Information Night, September 16, to gather further concerns from local residents, and to inform them about the committee and its work.

Conservation easements now in Alberta

Conservation easements are voluntary agreements between landowners and organizations interested in protecting the natural value of land. They allow an on-going partnership between landowners and qualified organizations as opposed to outright purchase of a piece of land.

On September 1, 1996, the Environmental Protection and Enhancement Amendment Act was proclaimed. The amendments allow private landowners to enter into conservation easement agreements with qualified organizations such as a non-profit conservation group, having charitable status and organized to hold conservation easements, a local authority such as a municipality, and the provincial government.

"Conservation easements can be mutually beneficial arrangements for the parties involved without actual transfer of ownership," says Mike Pearson, with Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development. "The benefits of conservation easements include a potential income tax credit and the knowledge that the natural values of the land will be protected."

Like utility easements, conservation easements are attached to the land title. Because of this, landowners need to carefully consider the terms of the agreement.

"In many cases, conservation easements will be compatible with most long-term agricultural use of the land," says Pearson.

Conservation easements are used mostly for conservation natural areas or wildlife habitat. They cannot be used to protect agricultural land for agricultural use only.

"There are numerous tools that serve conservation and protect wildlife habitat, this is just one option that landowners can consider," adds Pearson. "Other tools include individual conservation or preservation efforts, voluntary agreements, leases or the sale of land to conservation groups."

Landowners must remember that easements are a partnership and the organization holding the easement can enforce the negotiated terms of the agreement. Conservation easement agreements can be for a specified period of time or can be designed to last forever. There are considerable legalities involved in registering an easement agreement. The agreement takes time to put together and isn't a simple matter. Conservation easements certainly have their place but they are not the answer for every situation.

The Environmental Law Centre has produced a guide, Construction Easement Guide for Alberta, that answers many of the questions landowners may have when considering entering into conservation easements. The publication is available for $14.95 plus GST from the Environmental Law Centre, #204, 10709 Jasper Avenue, Edmonton, AB, T5J 3N3, or by calling (403) 424-5099, or 1-800-661-4238 outside of the Edmonton area.

Fall cleaning reveals lost-and-found treasures

By Michele Ducek
Librarian

I was doing a little house-keeping this past week (at the library, not at home) and I came across a few things that had been left by children participating in the READiscover Summer Reading Program. In addition to craft projects, there were a number of things that, if the kids don't want them back, I'm sure the parents do. The lost and found revealed the following:

- 1 cardigan, primarily blue, size small
- 1 teddy bear barrette
- 2 water guns (which I discovered were loaded, much to the delight of two young patrons)

- 1 t-shirt, size medium, bearing the image of a TV personality from a show I don't watch
- 3 hats (none of which fit me)
- 2 towels

- 1 beaded necklace (far out, man)

- 1 partially eaten wagon wheel (I think I'll toss this one)

So if your kid came to the library this summer and any of the above sounds familiar, come on by and we'll try to reunite you with your stuff.

Mystery and intrigue seem to be the common denominators for these recent arrivals in adult fiction:

Mystery and danger surrounding an unusual archaeological discovery leads an anthropologist to the shocking revelation that her own son may be part of some terrifying medical experiment in The Presence by John Saul.

Peter Decker investigates a mass killing at a trendy L.A. restaurant that turns out to be more complicated than expected in Serpent's Tooth by Faye Kellerman. Sign up on the reserve list.

It's June in Montreal and as the temperature rises, so does the body count in Deja Dead by Kathy Reichs. This critically acclaimed mystery novel has been drawing favorable comparisons to Patricia Cornwell's Kay Scarpetta series.

A prolonged drought brings a professional rainmaker to Goodland, North Dakota but even he might be unable to free the town from the grip of evil in A Dry Spell by Susie Molony.
